

German courses for adults in Hamburg

did deutsch-institut Hamburg

Regardless of the fact that Hamburg is quite distant from the open sea, life in Germany's second largest city is determined by water. Two large artificial inner-city lakes, the Inner and the Outer Alster as well as numerous crossing canals form Hamburg's inner city structure. Therefore the hanseatic metropolis has a maritime flair which is unique in Germany and a reputation for being the Venice of the North. Everywhere in the city it becomes obvious, how much people here enjoy life on the waterside – on the traditional fish-market where early risers and tourists taste the delicacies of the North Sea as well as in the bars on the banks of Elbe river, where in the evenings the party crowd settles in beach chairs for barbecues and picnics.
