Excursions

Edinburgh is full of exciting activities perfect for summer students. Exploring the historic Royal Mile with its narrow closes and lively street performers is a great start. A climb up Arthur's Seat or Calton Hill offers stunning city views and plenty of photo opportunities. The National Museum of Scotland is packed with hands-on exhibits, from science to natural history. Students can also enjoy the beautiful Princes Street Gardens, wander around the Grassmarket, or spot Harry Potter inspirations like Greyfriars Kirkyard. With so much to see, Edinburgh is a must!

Glasgow is a fantastic city for teenagers, with loads of things to do. The Riverside Museum, with its vintage cars, trams, and interactive displays, is always a hit. For art lovers, the Kelvingrove Art Gallery and Museum is packed with fascinating exhibits, from dinosaurs to Dali. Kelvingrove Park is perfect for chilling out or playing games with friends, with Glasgow uni just around the corner. Street art trails across the city centre make exploring fun and Instagram-worthy. Glasgow is vibrant, youthful, and totally open to enjoy.

A visit to Stirling or St Andrews adds even more excitement for teenagers exploring Scotland. In Stirling, teens can wander the old town, see the impressive Stirling Castle from the outside, and climb up to the Wallace Monument for breathtaking views – all while soaking up Scotland's epic history. St Andrews, on the other hand, offers a mix of beach vibes and culture. The sweeping West Sands beach is perfect for walks, games, or photos, while the ruins of the cathedral and castle make great spots to explore. Both towns are easy to enjoy without spending money, making them fun, free, and memorable stops.
