About Waterford

Founded in 914 AD by Vikings from Norway, Waterford City is over 1100 years old making it Ireland's oldest City. In 914, the great Viking adventurer and pirate, Regnall, a grandson of Ivor the Boneless, established a base here and built a Longphort or ships haven, which would in time become a modern city. In 918, Regnall took a fleet of ships and left Waterford sailing for York and he became the first Norse ruler of that City and held the title 'King of Waterford and York'. The name Waterford is derived from its Viking name Vadrarfjofdr which has two possible meanings; 'haven from the windswept sea' or 'fjord' of the rams'. The City was captured by the Anglo Normans in 1170 and the Vikings were expelled bringing a dramatic change. Within a few years of being captured, Waterford was escalated to the status of Royal City which owed allegiance to the Anglo Norman King of England, Henry II.

Today, Waterford is a vibrant and picturesque city that has managed to carefully maintain its important heritage, while also having a lively and modern shopping area, filled with cafes, award winning restaurants and an excellent mix of traditional, local and contemporary pubs.

So what exactly is Waterford's Viking Triangle?

The Waterford Viking Triangle is the 'old town' of Waterford City. It's a compact area that is just a short walk from the city's shopping area. It's a quirky place, with interesting nooks and crannies for you to explore. This is where you can enjoy some of the key attractions of Ireland's Ancient East, including the House of Waterford Crystal, the award winning Medieval Museum, Bishop's Palace and Reginald's Tower.

The Waterford Viking Triangle has lots of nice things to do and see. There are craft studios, cafes and lovely places to eat. Most of all though, there is a great sense of history. Waterford city's motto is 'Urbs Intacta Manet', which means The Untaken City and in the Waterford Viking Triangle you will walk through over 1,000 years of history, you can almost hear the Viking voices, or picture the French Huguenot bakers, you can imagine the tall ships on the quay importing their wines from France and Spain.

Waterford's fascinating history is there for the taking!

ISE Waterford

Our Tycor Business Park Campus is located in a quiet residential part of Waterford, yet still located in the heart of the city. There is a shopping centre, Lisduggan Shopping Centre, 10 minutes away from the campus where students can find a supermarket and some cafes. Similarly, only 15 minutes walk south of the school is the city centre where students can spend time in local bookshop, the Book Centre, which was once an old theatre now converted into a bookstore and cafe, local shops, bars and restaurants. Most students opt to walk and cycle to the school as it is in such a central location however it is serviced by a number of local buses which stop 50m from the school.
